1. Personal presentation

What are my professional characteristics? My strength is to drive business development and change through engaging, result oriented and well-structured leadership. I am passionate about what I do and it shows. Being humble enough to get new perspectives and insights with a clear commitment to sustainable performance.

Being a leader, I strive for providing a meaning and a structure. I truly believe in the individual and build my relations on trust. Enhancing the intrinsic motivation of my organization in combination with a well-adopted governance and performance management model. Crisp and clear communication with listening ears for the preferences of colleagues and customers.

During the last 10 years, I have spent a lot of time working with project, program and portfolio management. When business development is driven by successful projects, increased awareness and maturity in these knowledge areas becomes a crucial measure for executing strategy and reaching business objectives.

3. Family and what I do on my spare time

I am a proud father of Gustav and Oscar, 4 and 1 years old, and married to Louise. They are the most important in my life and I spend my spare time together with them. I try to keep up to date with how society evolves, in Sweden and internationally. When there is time for running, mountain biking, or other work out in nature I am all in.

4. Value that I bring to PMI

I bring a lot of energy and dedication for developing our society and business environment in Sweden further. My work experience has given me valuable insights in the field of project, program and portfolio management as well as in leadership. There is a strength and potential in PMI that I want to be part of and it is a pleasure being a leader in this organization, making things happen together with other volunteers. They say, “Good things happen when you get involved with PMI” and to me that is true story.

5. Why volunteering for PMI is important for me

The fact that projects are increasingly important as a means of driving profitable investments, manage change and innovation, executing strategy and eventually reaching business objectives makes this knowledge area crucial to any business or non-profit organization. At the same time, there are still far too many organizations where projects are not treated with the respect they deserve in relation to their business impact. To get projects under the radar of organizational leaders and create prosperous conditions for project work is a challenge that I find both urgent and interesting.
